Christine Assange lauds 2,500-strong #Unity4J movement in support of Julian Assange and WikiLeaks

On July 25th, just days after the #Unity4J movement went global, a "State of the Movement Address" live stream was broadcast by organizer Suzie Dawson and key supporters; to publicize achievements made by different parts of the movement only days after having come together to form a groundbreaking "non-violent digital direct action army".

Throughout the live address, Dawson detailed the work of countless #Unity4J activist teams comprised of musicians, web developers, writers, translators, researchers, and many other dedicated and skilled advocates for the well-being of Julian Assange.

Dawson was joined by Elizabeth Lea Vos, Vivian Kubrick and Ray McGovern, who each gave inspiring insight into the #Unity4J movement and its direction.

Similar addresses are to be held periodically into the foreseeable future.

Later on, the #Unity4J movement received the following words of encouragement from Julian's mother, Christine Assange:

"Dear Unity 4 Julian Team -

The tech gods have decreed that despite our best & varied efforts I was unable to join you tonight (apparently my phone is "busy")... but I wish to thank you all for your absolutely stellar work in amassing this formidable global army to protect & free my son Julian.

This will give him the hope, strength & love he will need in the fight for justice ahead.

Some time ago I called out for WikiLeaks Worriers to be replaced by WikiLeaks Warriors.

And what Warriors you all are.

Joining together in co-operation & support with Julian's long time supporters & defenders this new digital 21st Century global command centre is a welcome & timely boost in the fight for his freedom.

With special thanks to WikiLeaks Wonder Woman Warrior Suzie Dawson for the concept & driving it to reality.

Love to all the fellow WikiLeaks Warriors"
